Delhi High Court, New Delhi

As the nation's judiciary system strives to evolve and expedite legal procedures, architectural interventions become crucial to support these endeavors. The New Courts Complex at the eminent Delhi High Court brings with it a quiet, refined architectural vocabulary, augmenting the existing block. The Delhi high court embarked on an ambitious plan in 2013 to increase capacity by 40 percent in four years and 60 percent by 2020 which has been met precisely through a comprehensive master plan. It envisaged a combination of redevelopment, relocation of functions within the existing complex and building from scratch on new land.
